

Which SendKit plan fits you

Pick by monthly sending volume and team shape. Higher tiers buy volume, storage, and agency reporting, not better deliverability.

Plan	Price /mo	Includes	Best fit
Essential	$99	75,000 emails, 30,000 leads	Solo founders and first-SDR teams building consistent volume
Plus	$249	250,000 emails, 100,000 leads	Growing teams running several campaigns in parallel
Pro	$499	500,000 emails, unlimited lead storage, white-label reporting unlocks here	Agencies reporting under their own brand
Agency	$899	2.5M emails, branded reports, dedicated account manager	Multi-client agencies running reporting at scale
Power	$2,499	10M emails	Teams running outbound as a core channel

What every plan includes

Everything core on $99

All core sending, deliverability, and warmup features are available on the $99 plan. Tiers change volume, not capability.

Isolated dedicated IPs

Every customer gets isolated IPs and a dedicated sending server from day one. It is not a premium add-on unlocked at a higher tier.

Unlimited workspaces

Each client, brand, or SDR gets its own isolated workspace without changing your bill, on every plan including Essential.

Mailbox capacity that scales

The mailbox cap is 2% of your monthly email allowance, which is 1,500 mailboxes on Essential, and grows with each tier.

Why there is no free tier

Most platforms run every customer through shared sending infrastructure, so a trial account costs them almost nothing. SendKit provisions an isolated dedicated IP and a dedicated server per customer, a real fixed cost the moment it spins up, whether that account sends one email or a million. There is no shared pool to quietly absorb it, so every account starts on paid, dedicated infrastructure from day one.

An honest note: if you are sending under roughly 200 emails a day, a full platform may be more than you need right now. Grow into the volume, then come back.

Start on the plan that matches this month's volume

Take this month's actual send volume, find the row it fits, and start there. You can move up when the math says so. Full details at sendkit.ai/pricing.
